“ I remember in 6th grade, at one point, Feryn was my only friend. I remember my first day going to her house, when Andy still had a mullet 😂. We made our own version of the game guess who on a poster board. I remember learning how to finger spell sign language so we could exchange messages from across the classroom. We would write each other notes in school a dozen times a day. Feryn had the best handwriting. I used to ride my bike 7 blocks to Feryn's house every morning, so we could walk the other 7 blocks together to school. I remember how she used to have a crush on my big brother and she would tease him constantly and was always trying to get a glimpse of him without a shirt on haha. I remember making up cheerleading routines together and then showing them off to our squad. I remember memorizing the napoleon dynamite dance with her in her moms living room. We had The sickest secret handshake ever. I called her Fargo for some reason. I remember dressing up and going to prom together. I remember Feryn was always so confident and effortlessly cool. She made the best scrambled eggs with cheese. I remember going to Dairy Queen in the summer. We grew up and grew apart, but I always had a special place in my heart for Feryn. She was such a huge part of my life during those years of middle school and high school.

“ I remember when we were younger we played with Spice Girls and you were Baby Spice because she was your favorite Spice Girl when Molly and I came over to play on the porch when we were nextdoor at my Aunt's house, we had a blast that day hanging out with you. I also remember when I spent the night with you and we played dress up, listen and sung Eminem and Christina Aguilera, then we ate snacks watched 8 Mile. We were such goofy butts then but had a blast also. I remember all the times you and Andy would come over to my Aunts also just to hangout with us. I will always remember these memories girl. Love ya!!
