“ Now it's no small secret where Liam and Louise liked to dine in town,at The Eaton Place.( I think they had "stock" in the place.)When ever my wife or I would visit we would try to take them there for dinner. Once when my wife Barbara was in town for work and having to pull an "over night" she said she would try to take them out to eat. During the course of the day I called Louise and stated "you MAY be going out to dinner tonight." now this was after Liam was'nt driving anymore so a trip to "town" was a treat. I did'nt get to finish my sentence when she cut me off with "she'll be here at 6p.m. and we're goin' to dinner." At the Eaton Place I suppose? was my reply, "yep!" came back at me on the phone. Well it must be nice! I said,I get cold leftovers. "It sure is" Louise fired back with a chuckle. I'm told that all three had a good time. Barb and I have been back to town 3 thime since then. Louise' funeral,once to visit Liam,and Liams' funeral and all 3 times Barb said she could'nt go back there to eat again. She said they had such a good time that it would'nt be the same eating there without them. this has hit both Barb and I very hard it has been like the loss of a 3rd set of grandparents. All our sympathys go out to the family. Alan & Barbara Day.

“ One of my favorite stories with Grandpa is when I was young and helping him hook up a wagon. I some how managed to get my thumb between the tongue and the tractor hitch and before I knew it I had a smashed thumb. Grandpa was always a man who could fix anything so to fix my thumb he wrapped it in electrical tape and called it good. A little later my mom showed up and I honestly believe that was the only time I ever saw my grandpa scared of my mom. I'll never forget the look on his face when she looked at him. I'll always remember Grandpa, I am proud to carry his name.
