In the end, she found peace and happiness with her family, and her beloved pets. Recently, she worked at the Holiday Inn in Charlotte, where she developed a strong sense of family with her coworkers. Kelly's friends will remember her sympathetic nature, penchant for living life to the fullest, and her lasting sense of humor and love.

“ I thought of Kelly out of the blue today only to find her a week to late. I knew Kelly in FI and she went through ups and downs, Kelly had the most tender heart. She had a kind word for everyone. I'm so sad I won't get to see my friend again. But, it warms my heart to see she found ger way home, to people who love her. May she always be at peace.

“ When I was considering my future with stage four prostate cancer, with high Gleason scale 8,9 and 10's Kelly as a new friend made herself available to me and stood by me encouraging the treatment process and promised to stand by me if I decided to proceed. Her selfless devotion to me at that point in my life was genuine. She provided me the strength to go through not only the radiation but the subsequent chemotherapy and months of physical rehab-) 🙏😊. My own private guardian angel-) we dated almost 2 years and as it happened we became roommates and closer. As a companion I loved her for her attentive and congenial approach. As a friend I valued every minute we were together. Although it proved we were never meant to be together, and felt it best to separate. It's hard not hearing her voice and seeing her smile. Her safety and happiness were of paramount concern to me. I can see now that she was happy and safe at her parents house. The pic of her with the dog, Gabby still alive and friends from work with bonds like family. Karen and Dean - you were angels for her and she loved you. I thank God for you both and am glad Dean made it through his ordeal. Let's say I'm a friend of the family as I am very sorry for your terrible and untimely loss. I am very happy that Kelly found her security and happiness with her family. May she rest in peace.
