“ Our hearts break with the news of Lee's passing and finding the words to express our sadness is impossible. Still, we have so many wonderful memories of joy, laughter and celebration that it reminds us in this darkness that we are so grateful to have shared much time together. We - my brother Steve McNiven, my sister Christine Daniels and myself Joan Helson - were so blessed to have the family of choosing in Lee and Carol Monroe, long time friends of my parents. Many visits to our parents' home in Halifax, Nova Scotia, especially for Christmas holidays, will always be among the fondest memories for us. How could we forget the time Carol and Lee flew from Charlotte to Halifax wearing elf hats, greeting us at the door with festive apparel that received so many smiles en route to our house. We remember always rearranging the Christmas decorations that spelled out "NOEL", because they were supposed to spell "LEON". We would laugh and laugh. There were so many conversations over coffee (Lee had an uncanny gift for making the best coffee). We named Carol and Lee "honorary grandparents" to our children, and the love those babies felt in the arms of our family of choosing has blessed those young hearts with a deeper understanding of what it means to give unconditionally. Perhaps my favorite memory, though, is of sitting on the patio of Carol and Lee's Tucson home, the brilliant glory of the sun setting and the sounds of the birds singing praises of the beauty of the day. In the quiet moments there, I am sure I heard Heaven say to me, "You know how lucky you are to have found these friends with hearts wider than this evening Arizona sky?". "Yes, I do." I remember saying in my soul. We are truly, truly blessed to have known Lee and to have been embraced as family. I am truly thankful for the years of friendship shared with my parents, for including us in that friendship circle, and for showing us all what unconditional love and being in the service of others means. Heaven is richer now. Though our hearts are broken, our hearts are also stronger and better for being in your presence. I know we never left a visit with Lee and Carol without the biggest hugs in the history of hugs. This is what holds us closely now. Lee you will be deeply missed by all of us. We love you.

Sincerely,

Joan Helson, Steve McNiven and Christine Daniels (children of Jane and James McNiven)

“ We are so sorry about Lee's passing. Although we haven 't been in contact recently, we will always value the friendship we had with Lee (and Carol, too). He was truly a genuine friend whom we respected greatly. Leonard valued Lee's wisdom in his capacity as a director within Eaton County government. Marilyn will be forever grateful for Lee's special friendship to her brother, Dan Goff. Lee did much to make this world as better place. We both sent our most sincere condolences.

“ We were very saddened by the news about Lee. He and Carol have been great friends of ours for many decades. We shared a lot of laughs and experiences together. Lee was a very special person, kind and always positive. Many know that he had great financial expertise and used his talent in the service of many different charitable organizations. We had great times together in Boston and New York City, as well as in Arizona.

There are few people who leave this world having the reputation for all-around goodness. Lee is one of them, which is why so many of we who knew him will miss him so very much.
