“ Dear Wyble Family, I am so sorry that you have been through this unexpected death. I know that he was a good man because I have had the opportunity to have a friendship with his daughter Jamie. Jamie is a caring and positive person. She is talented and makes friends easily She adored her father. She wouldn't be the lovely woman she is today if she had not had a caring father. Jamie hold the many positive memories of your dad tight and release the ones that cause you pain. He would have not wanted that. When people are desperate and depressed they often can only think that they have to release the terrible pain. Never think it is because they do not love their family enough. But their personal feelings are so strong that they can't get beyond them to seek out others or professional support. He was paralyzed to think logically. He was mentally unable to choose other alternatives only act to release the suffering. He is without pain today. Unfortunately he left pain for many. Jamie, I will support you anyway you need. Even if you just need a trusted friend to share a cup a coffee and let it all out. Mona Ellard

“ Jamie, Lacy, and Kris - I love you all so much and know this a tough time for you right now. I wish I could've been there to grieve with you, Tom was a great man, and treated me just like another one of his daughters. Keep those great memories in your heart and stay strong for eachother. You are three of the strongest women I know, and this is not going to change that, there will be some steps backwards, but keep pushing through and leaning on eachother and you will be okay as the days go on. I love you and miss you, and again am so sorry that this day had to happen.

“ Kris, My heart goes out to you and your entire family. Tom was a true friend, awesome co-worker and a great boss to me. He touched a lot of lives working for GM in Lansing and around the country. I am sure your entire community was better because of him and they feel the same way. He was an amazingly talented man in everything that he touched and was involved in. He loved his work at GM, his farming, hunting, helping others and having a good time. But most all, i will remember him for was his love and devotion to his family. He talked often about them!!! Please remember, he loved all of you dearly and he always will. God bless you and your family in this difficult time. Sincerely, Dave Lawless
